

Saxophonist Lukas Wögler, based in Stuttgart, moves between jazz tradition and sonic exploration. His compositions and saxophone playing delve into wide emotional landscapes, always driven by a search for authenticity and a personal musical voice.

Born in 2000, Wögler began his musical journey on the recorder before switching to saxophone at the age of eleven. Early formative experiences included the Jazz Juniors BW, the State Youth Jazz Orchestra of Baden-Württemberg under the direction of Rainer Tempel, and a pre-college program with Alexander "Sandi" Kuhn. In 2018, he began his bachelor's studies at the University of Music and Performing Arts Stuttgart (HMDK) with Christian Weidner. He also studied with Fabian Arends, Heidi Bayer, Christoph Neuhaus, Sebastian Gille, Robert Landfermann, and Rainer Tempel.

In 2023, Wögler was nominated for the Baden-Württemberg State Jazz Prize and was a member of the German National Youth Jazz Orchestra (BuJazzO) from 2022 to 2024.

Alongside his own quartet, he has performed with the Samuel Restle Bigband, Lisa Wilhelm Quartet, Eddy Sonnenschein, Sofia Wills' VOLO, Samuel Restle Octet, Tobias Becker Bigband, Sunday Night Orchestra, NEEVE, Still Sane, JazzatLarge, Bandinthebix, among others. With these and other projects, Wögler performs on stages, at festivals, and in clubs throughout Germany and beyond.

Short Version:

Saxophonist Lukas Wögler, based in Stuttgart, moves between jazz tradition and free sound exploration. His music and playing are driven by a search for authenticity and a distinct personal voice. Born in 2000, he began on recorder before switching to saxophone at age eleven. Early on, he was part of the State Youth Jazz Orchestra BW and studied with Sandi Kuhn. In 2018, he began his bachelor's studies at the HMDK Stuttgart with Christian Weidner. He was a member of the German National Youth Jazz Orchestra and was nominated for the Baden-Württemberg State Jazz Prize in 2023. Besides leading his own quartet, he plays in various ensembles and is active on stages across Germany and beyond.

Very Short Version:

Lukas Wögler (*2000) is a saxophonist from Stuttgart working between jazz tradition and free sound exploration. He studied at the HMDK Stuttgart, performed with the German National Youth Jazz Orchestra, and was nominated for the Baden-Württemberg State Jazz Prize in 2023. He is currently active in various projects across Germany.